(Discuss importance in terms of historical or architectural context as defined by theme, period, and geographic scope. Also address integrity.)

The structure is located in Huntington Park, adjacent to the City of Vernon, the first "exclusively industrial" city in America. This commercial building has an end gabled roof, which gives it the look of a residential building. The present condition is fair.

The integrity of the structure is moderate. It is not a particularly good example of the architectural style or of a method of construction. Research of available historical records has not uncovered any significant associations of the occupants.
